

As part of our award system at John Spence we use a system called Class Charts. Class Charts is an online system which allows us to track achievement and behaviour throughout the school day.

At John Spence we recognise the importance of clear and timely communication between home and school. The launch of Class Charts to parents and carers will allow us to further enhance our strong relationships between school and home. We intend to launch parent/ carer accounts in the New Year.

Access to Class Charts will give you timely updates of how your child is getting on in school that day, specifically sharing information with you about: positive and negative award points.

Students are already used to this system and have a clear understanding of how and why points are awarded. Points awarded are linked to rewards and praise and they also allow us to identify students that need additional support.

Students are keen to keep track of their points and having the app on your phone or computer will keep you up to date with how your child has been rewarded in school.

If you have more than one child, you can access Class Charts information about your children from a single, centralised parent account. Class Charts for parents can be accessed via the website www.classcharts.com, or through the iOS and Android apps which are free to download. Once you have received your parent code you are ready to set up your Class Charts parent account.

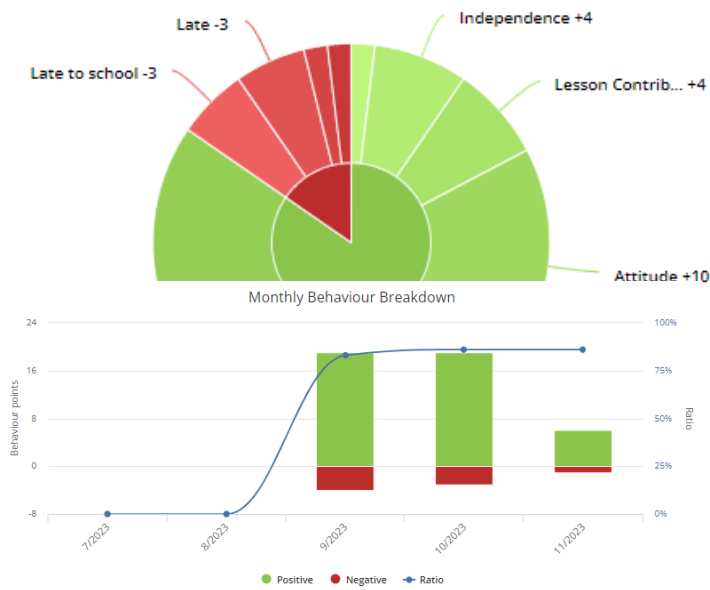

There will be more specific guidance issued in the near future to support you to get set up.

It is an excellent system to keep you informed and in order to utilise its full potential you may wish to check it regularly, ideally each school day.

In the meantime, here are some images of how class charts will look and what will be displayed on your parental dashboard.

www.classcharts.com

Behaviour score breakdown

This is an example of a pie chart which shows the breakdown of positive and negative points that your child has received.

This is an example of a bar chart which shows the monthly breakdown of positive and negative points that your child has received.

The blue line shows the ratio between positive and negative points. A 50% ratio means that your child has the same number of positive and negative points.

All students have a target points ratio of 90%.

